MEDIA RELEASE

The Tasmanian Motorcycle Council has called for

IDENTIFICATION OF CYCLISTS.

While the majority of cyclists obey the law there is an element within the cycling fraternity that continually do not.

They obstruct vehicles travelling on the road; while travelling in a group doing far less speed compared to other vehicles, they will not move into single file to allow vehicles to pass. Cyclists use the excuse that they are entitled to ride two abreast on the road, while failing to accept that they are unreasonably obstructing traffic, which is illegal. Despite it being legal for cyclists to travel two abreast and laws allowing other vehicle to cross double lines to pass when safe to do so, irresponsible and discourteous rider behaviour puts cyclists and other road users at risk.

The TMC has received many complaints from motorcyclists, car drivers, bus drivers and truck drivers about cyclists who behave irresponsibly.

The Tasmanian Motorcycle Council would like to see cyclists be identifiable so that the cyclists who break the law can be identified and proceeded against.

Traffic offences that are continually being broken are shown below. TMC believes this is caused by lack of education and enforcement.

The Tasmanian Motorcycle council would like the Road Safety Advisory Council look into cyclists being identifiable while riding.

Identification could be that cyclists over 18 years of age.

- To wear a number for identification purposes.
- Reflective numbering of the cycle's helmet.

Identification could be funded through the road safety levy.
